HIGHLIGHTS

THE CREATIVE INDUSTRIES APPROACH

The programme focuses on a broad creative industries curriculum so students can discover creative industries as a whole. This approach allows students to fully understand value creation in the creative industries, and to develop their careers from one sub-sector to another.

STUDENTS' DIVERSITY AND CREATIVITY

Creativity is born of diversity. This Master of Science is made up of a group of students, both French and international (50% of international students), with very different profiles (both managerial and artistic).

INNOVATIVE PEDAGOGY THROUGH IMMERSION

Teaching is immersive, it draws on research expertise, but also has strong links with professionals, using methods such as on-site courses in arts, culture and creative organisations, workshops with many brand names, study trips and projects for organisations in the creative field.

INTERNATIONAL SEMINAR

In January, international experts in Arts and Creative Industries Management deliver a comparative management seminar on the specificity of each country: USA, Canada, Italy, UK, China, India, etc.

ACADEMIC AND PROFESSIONAL EXPERTISE

The programme is managed by the Creative Industries Culture Research Centre. It produces and shares knowledge about the management of creative industries and culture. From prestigious arts institutions to small dynamic creative firms, the programme gathers a lot of partners who share current practices within courses.

FRENCH FLAIR

Get the best out of our arts, culture and creative organisations management. France is unique in its wealth of cultural heritage and its lively creative sector. This country famed for its "cultural exception" supports a wide diversity of productions; culture is not considered as a mere commodity. France identifies a unique notion of artistic, cultural and creative goods which distinguishes them worldwide.
